Copenhagen, April 23, N. S.

LAST Saturday the King of Denmark visited the Holm, and saw his Fleet and Naval Stores; and this Day the Regiment of Foot Guards, together with that of the Prince Royal, have performed their usual Exercise, and passed in Review before his Majesty at Amalienbourg.

Copenhagen, April 27, N. S. On Wednesday last his Danish Majesty reviewed the Regiment of Grenadiers and that of Fuhnen; on Thursday those of Zealand and Holstein; on Friday the Horse Guards, and this Morning the new raised Regiment of Falster, with the Body of Artillery.

Copenhagen, April 30, N. S. This Morning their Danish Majesties set out from hence for Friedensburg, intending to dine with the Queen Mother at Hirscholm. Within the Course of this Week the Troops in Garrison at Elsenore are to be review'd; and on the 14th of next Month the King proposes to begin his Progress without returning to this Place.

Whitehall, May 3.

Articles of Capitulation were signed on the 7th Instant, N. S. by Marshal Saxe and General d'Aylva, Governour of Maestricht, for the giving up of the Town upon honourable Conditions: In Consequence of which, the Garrison was to march out of the Town on the 10th Instant, N. S. with Military Honours. And the 11th Instant, N. S. was the Day named for the Cessation of Hostilities in the Low Countries.

Admiralty Office, May 1.

Letters received this Day from Rear Admiral Knowles, dated in Port Louis Harbour the 13th of March last, bring the following Advices, viz.

That the Admiral, accompanied by Governour Trelawney, sail'd from Port Royal Harbour in Jamaica, on the 13th of February, with eight Ships of War of the Line, strengthen'd with a Detachment of 240 Men of Governour Trelawney's Regiment, in order to attack St. Jago de Cuba, but finding the Winds to continue Northerly, so as to prevent the Ships approaching that Coast, it was agreed to make an Attempt upon Port Louis, on the South Side of Hispaniola; the Admiral thereupon made a Disposition of his Ships for that Purpose, and began the Attack the 8th of March, about One o'Clock, within almost Pistol-shot of the Walls; and after a warm Cannonading for about three Hours, the Admiral finding the Enemy were drove from their Guns, and silenced, he sent a Summons on Shore to the Governour, to surrender; who soon sent an Officer off with Propositions, which the Admiral rejected, and sent back the Officer with a Copy of Articles, which he would allow, and gave the Governour but an Hour to determine on them, within which Time they were accepted, and are as follow, viz.

That the Governor surrender instantly the Fort up to the Admiral, and no Military Officer or Soldier in it serve against his Britannick Majesty or his Allies for the Space of one Year and one Day from the Date hereof.

That on those Conditions the Admiral consents that the Garrison march out with their Arms, Colours flying, and Drums beating, (but no Cannon or Mortars, or any Ammunition whatsoever.)

That all the Officers shall be allowed to carry such Baggage as upon Honour is their own, but subject to be inspected if demanded; and that all Negroes and Mulattoes, that are absolutely their Servants or Property, the Admiral will compliment them with; but all other Negroes and Mulattoes, that are in the Fort, shall be delivered up as Right of Capture, together with the Fort, and all the Cannon, Munitions, and Appurtenances thereunto belonging.

Upon

[Price Two-pence.]

Upon theſe Conditions the Admiral agrees that this Evening the Garriſon may march out as before-mentioned; at the ſame Time the Keys of the Caſtle ſhall be delivered up to the Officer whom he ſends to take Poſſeſſion, and the Troops of his Britannick Majeſty ſhall march in as the others march out.

That for what Lenity the Admiral is diſpoſed to ſhew the Town and Inhabitants, the Conditions ſhall be ſettled between Governor Chateaunoyé and him To-morrow. Dated on board his Britannick Majeſty's Ship Canterbury in Port Louis, this 8th Day of March, 1747-8.

In Conſequence of which, Major Scott, of General Fuller's Regiment, (who had been deſired by the Admiral and Governour Trelawney to command the Detachment of the Governour's Regiment, and the Marines) was ſent on Shore to take Poſſeſſion of the Fort in his Majeſty's Name, and the Troops were landed directly.

There were 78 Guns mounted in the Fort, moſtly 42, 36, and 28 Pounders, and five Mortars, with great Quantities of all Kinds of Ammunition and Stores, moſt of the Guns and Carriages new, and many of the Guns weighed from 69 to 84 Hundred Weight, and every Thing in very good Order in the Fortreſs.

The Admiral found three Ships, a Snow, and three Privateer Sloops in the Harbour, which he took Poſſeſſion of.

M. Chateaunoyé, the General, arrived in Town the Night before the Attack, with a Reinforcement of three Companies of Soldiers, ſo that he had the Mortification to ſee the Fort taken.

During the Attack the Enemy ſet Fire to a Ship, and endeavoured to drop her on board the Admiral, or the Elizabeth, but Boats were ſent off which towed her clear, and took Poſſeſſion of two more deſigned for the ſame Purpoſe, though the Enemy's Muſquetry played very ſmartly on the Boats all the Time; and though the Fire from the Fort was as brisk as it could poſſibly be, yet our Loſs in the whole Action was only 19 Men killed, and 60 wounded; but among the Slain was Captain Rentone of the Strafford, and Captain Cuſt (who went a Volunteer in the Expedition) both much lamented. The Enemy acknowledge to have had 160 Men killed and wounded, (four of whom are Captains) and they ſay that 128 were killed outright.

The Admiral was making what Diſpatch he could in blowing up the Fort, and then intended to proceed to put in Execution his firſt Deſign againſt St. Jago.
